

Konrad Adenauer Foundation (KAS)

Committed to advancing and maintaining democracy, freedom, and justice in the world, the Konrad-Adenauer-Stiftung (KAS) with its headquarters in Berlin has been continuously working in the various fields of social, economic, educational, cultural, environmental, and security politics in an effort to strengthening political stability, economic prosperity, regional integration, and mutual understanding since 1955. In Jordan, the KAS has been active through its Amman Office for more than 25 years aiming at sustainable social, political, and economic development. In addition, the KAS promotes the Euro-Mediterranean dialogue as well as the dialogue between cultures and religions. Dedicated to the legacy of the first German Federal Chancellor Konrad Adenauer (1876-1967), the Konrad Adenauer Foundation, in specific, works together with its partners to foster:

- Democracy and the rule of law
- The civil society
- The dialogue of cultures and religions
- The social market economy
- Conflict management and conflict prevention
- Regional cooperation.

The KAS considers itself a “consulting agency”. Therefore, the Amman Office of the KAS, together with its partners, has given priority to observing, analyzing, and promoting development cooperation through consulting. Our best assets are sharing valuable and unique expertise and establishing sustainable networks with our partners through conferences, meetings, workshops, research studies, as well as study and information programmes in Germany and Europe. In addition, scholarships are granted to specially gifted students. By highlighting and publishing national projects and best practices that could serve as models for Jordan and the region, we strive to encourage intensive exchange and networking. Through its extensive information policy, the Amman Office seeks to further increase the interest of Germany and the European Union in Jordan and the region.

The KAS operates in accordance with the principles of partnership and in line with our ethical beliefs and values, political guidelines, and transparency. Innovative reforms and new ideas can only take sustainable roots if they are shaped and implemented by political and social decision-makers and the people involved. Therefore, the partners take centre stage for us. Together with our partners, which range from government institutions, parliaments, political parties, NGOs, business and employers associations to universities and the media, programmes are jointly designed, planned, conducted and evaluated to benefit Jordan and the region in its objective to achieve sustainable political, social, and economic development.
